

This #GivingTuesday, Support Addiction Science

December 2, 2014

Consider supporting The BASIS this year! Help us continue to produce this information resource at no cost to readers!

Scientific advances have improved the lives of countless people struggling with addiction and its consequences. Yet, we have more work to do. Too often, members of the general public, including those affected by addiction, cannot access accurate information about scientific discoveries and science-based resources. This Giving Tuesday, show your support for addiction science by supporting The BASIS, a product of the Division on Addiction, at the Cambridge Health Alliance, a Harvard Medical School teaching hospital. Your tax-deductible contribution will help us provide a forum for the free exchange of information related to addiction and public access to the latest scientific developments and resources, including self-help tools like the Your First Step to Change series.

The Division on Addiction is an entirely self-supported academic organization that relies on grants, contracts, and gifts in order to produce The BASIS and our other high-quality work. In short, we rely on donors like you to continue this important work! The mission of the Division on Addiction (the Division) is to strengthen worldwide understanding of addiction through innovative research, education, and the global exchange of information. The ultimate goal of the Division is to alleviate the social, medical, and economic burdens caused by addictive behaviors. Click here to support The BASIS.

(If you represent an organization, please click here to learn about organizational sponsorship opportunities.)

Thank you for supporting our mission.