Register Now: Addiction Medicine Continuing Education Course

August 7, 2015

We invite clinicians, practitioners, and allied health professionals who treat clients with addictive disorders to attend the 2015 Addiction Medicine Continuing Education course now on Harvard Medical School's campus at The Joseph B. Martin Conference Center on October 2-3, 2015.

The Division on Addiction, Cambridge Health Alliance presents "Addiction Medicine: A Case-based Approach to the Treatment of Addictive Disorders, with a Special Focus on the Traumatized Brain." Each year, this course provides cutting-edge information on methods of diagnosis and protocols for intervention and management strategies for patients with substance abuse and dependence. Our expert faculty provides a forum for dialogue and participant interaction through lectures, case-studies, and Q & A. During 2015, the course will include several presentations that provide recommendations for the treatment of addiction among individuals who have experienced brain trauma, including Wounded Warriors, accident victims, and athletes. Though our sub-focus helps to honor returning veterans specifically, the faculty will discuss principles of care that apply to all patients experiencing some form of brain trauma.

The Harvard Medical School is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

The Harvard Medical School designates this live activity for a maximum of 14.50 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should claim only credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.
